SHERIFF WITHIN HIS RIGHT.

Is Conceded Authority to Forbid Boxing on Military Reservation.

After an extensive search of the law the War Department has discovered that the state authorities of Wisconsin have legal jurisdiction over the Sparta military reservation, and therefore that the sheriff of the county was within his rights when he declared that he would enter the government target range there and arrest any of the participants in a boxing match which was to be held by the troops stationed there.

Usually the jurisdiction of the civil officials ends at the entrance to a government reservation, but in this case it appeared that the national government neglected to take advantage of the provisions of a special act of the Wisconsin legislature of 1911, which would have confirmed its exclusive jurisdiction.

Army Officer's Sentence Approved.

First Lieut. John J. Burleigh, 3d Infantry, recently was convicted by court-martial at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., of the charge of intoxicating himself for duty by the use of intoxicating liquor, and was sentenced to be reprimanded.

In approving the sentence of the court, Gen. Leonard Wood, commanding the Department of the East, said that "Lieut. Burleigh should realize that his conviction materially impairs confidence in his value as an officer and should also realize that a continuance of the use by him of intoxicating liquor to a similar extent must ultimately result disastrously to his career in the military service."

MOUNT WASHINGTON, N. H., August 20.—The old Tip Top House, which formerly sheltered tourists for many years on the summit of Mount Washington, was burned yesterday. TELLS OF RESULTS OF ZEPPELIN RAIDS

Arthur J. Balfour Says Germans Have Gained No Military Advantages.

DEATH LIST, EIGHTY-NINE; 220 CIVILIANS INJURED

Explains Meagerness of Official Reports as Unwillingness to Aid the Enemy Raiders.

LONDON, August 30.—"No soldier or sailor has been killed or has even been wounded, and only on one occasion has damage been inflicted which could, by any stretch of language, be described as the smallest military importance," says Arthur J. Balfour, first lord of the admiralty, of the Zeppelin raids on England in a letter to a correspondent who had complained that the British accounts of these raids were meager, while the German reports on the same events "are quite rich in lurid details."

"The reason," says Mr. Balfour in his letter, "is quite simple. Zeppelins attack under cover of night, and by preference on moonless nights."

Landmarks Become Elusive.

"In such conditions landmarks are elusive, navigation difficult and errors inevitable and sometimes of surprising magnitude. The Germans constantly assert, and may sometimes believe, that they dropped bombs on places which, in fact, they never approached."

"Why make their future voyages easier by telling them where they blundered in the past? Since their objects are our gall, why dissuade them? Let us learn what we can from the enemy, but let us teach him only what we must. Nobody will, I think, be disposed to doubt that this reticence is judicious. But the question may still be asked whether it is used not merely to embarrass the Germans, but unduly to reassure the British."

Results of Zeppelin Raids.

"How ought we to rate the Zeppelins among the weapons of attack, and what have they done and what can they do? To this last question I do not offer a reply. I cannot prophesy about the future of a method of warfare which still is in its infancy. I can, however, say something of its results during the past."

"That it has caused much suffering to many innocent people is unhappily certain, but even this result, with all its tragedy, has been modified by all proportion by the home office that during the last twelve months seventy-one civilian adults and eighteen children have been killed, and that 189 civilian adults and thirty-one children have been injured. Judged by numbers, this cumulative result of many successive crimes does not equal the single effort of a submarine, which, to the horror of all the world, sent 1,198 unoffending civilians to the bottom in the Lusitania."

"Yet it is bad enough, and we may well ask what military advantage has been gained at the cost of so much innocent blood."

New Dress for Zeppelins.

PARIS, August 30.—Germany's Zeppelins have been repainted a leaden gray similar to the color of battleships, which renders them difficult to see even when flying beneath the clouds.

A telegram from Zurich published in the Milan Stampa says that during recent flights over Lake Constance Zeppelins appeared in their new dress. The latest models resemble large fish. Both ends taper so that they have lost to some extent the familiar cigar shape.

MORE OFFICERS NEEDED.

Secretaries of War and Navy to Recommend Increases.

Secretary Garrison has directed the War College to submit plans for securing additional regular army officers and a corps of reserve officers, both for the regular army and for a volunteer army or any other force which Congress may authorize. That step was taken with a view of recommendations to Congress at its coming session.

Secretary Daniels also is expected to recommend additional officers for the navy, regardless of the building program yet to be decided upon. A plan is under consideration, it is understood, by which the number of officers in the navy would be placed on the basis of its tonnage. Under such a system there would be an automatic increase in the number of officers as the number of ships was increased.

Increase in the Naval Reserve.

To date 163 former enlisted men have joined the naval reserve established by act of Congress approved March 3, 1915. Suggestions are being considered as to an amendment of the law so as to stimulate enlistment to the reserve. While the enlistment has not been large during the few months in which the law has been in operation, those in the naval reserve outnumber those in the army reserve.

PLANS OF SUFFRAGISTS TO IMPRESS CONGRESS

Members to Be Given "Farewell Parties" When They Start for Washington.

Representatives in Congress are to be given unique farewell parties when they leave their home towns for Washington this fall preliminary to the assembling of Congress. Suffragists intend to gather for a district convention in each congressional district where they have not been successful and set forth their views in regard to the need for woman suffrage amendment to the federal Constitution, calling upon their representatives in Congress for support.

Whether the representative in Congress pledges himself to aid or not he will be supplied with the resolutions adopted at the conventions and signed by all the local suffrage leagues in his district.

Convention in Washington.

If these documents fail to convince him of the demands among his constituents, and if the hundreds of simultaneous district conventions, timed as a farewell impression for him, do not move him, it is expected that he will be impressed on his arrival in Washington by the fact that hundreds and hundreds of women from all over the country will converge here for the forty-seventh annual convention of the National American Woman Suffrage Association. This body is to make an appeal to Congress, presenting in great numbers copies of resolutions sent in from each congressional district.

Mrs. Medill McCormick, chairman of the congressional committee of the National American Woman Suffrage Association in Washington, explains the purpose of this plan for going-away parties as follows:

"It is to demonstrate the demand for nationwide woman suffrage and to secure action during the next session of Congress that the congressional association. This committee, under the state president or state congressional chairman, is composed of representative suffragists, one from each district in her state, whose duty it is to serve as leader in congressional activities on the part of all the suffrage leagues in her district."

"This congressional district machinery has been running smoothly all summer," said Mrs. McCormick, in telling of the work. "From the beginning we have used the card catalogue system of checking up the congressmen, you know, and now we run it in duplicate; that is, we record whatever facts we obtain for ourselves in Washington, including the congressman's vote on all legislation in which women are interested, and we also send a card to the congressional district leader. She fills out the various questions asked concerning her particular representative, his political record and affiliations at home, whether his wife is a suffragist or an anti, and various other items that may bear upon his case. Then she goes to interview him on woman suffrage, returns the card to us, and there we have him—from both ends of the line! When the committee in Washington approaches a new member at the time of the next session, for example, it will know in advance the manner of man with whom it has to deal."

Especial emphasis will be given to the meetings in the districts of new members of Congress, of whom there are over 130 this session, and no congressman will be left in a position to oppose us on the ground that there is no sentiment in my district."

To Impress Congressmen.

The formation which the suffragists have worked out under the leadership of Mrs. McCormick is, in brief, this: A state congressional committee auxiliary to the national congressional committee has been organized in every state within and tributary to the state association. This committee, under the state president or state congressional chairman, is composed of representative suffragists, one from each district in her state, whose duty it is to serve as leader in congressional activities on the part of all the suffrage leagues in her district."
